

The Bennington is ready to put to sea. She was to have gone to Gardner's bay for target practice, but when the Chilean trouble developed she also was ordered to stay at her dock. The Concord will be fit for business in a short time when she has a new steering quadrant. The Bennington is reported to be on her way from China to the West Indies. It is plain that she is long there will be a very strong fleet of United States ships in the West Indies or somewhere further south.

The Armstrong-Orleans Trouble.

Special to THE HERALD—Examiner Cable. LONDON, Nov. 4.—The Melba Armstrong-Orleans trouble seems very likely to end in bloodshed. The only thing that can prevent it will be the duke's keeping out of Captain Armstrong's way, for the duke's husband is determined to challenge to duels "the petit duc." On his arrival at Brindisi, Melba sent word to the duke, who is visiting the King of Portugal, and he immediately skipped to Paris.

Your representative saw Mr. Armstrong, the captain's brother, to-day at Hotel Belgravia, where they both reside. Mr. Armstrong said: "My brother has gone to Scotland to arrange his business matters preliminary to a safe and important undertaking. He proposes to challenge the duke and if they meet will certainly kill him as my brother is an expert swordsman, an excellent shot and not disposed to show the little Frenchman any mercy."

Mr. Armstrong denied emphatically the charge of cruelty published in Melba's statement. He said: "I have been treated with gross injustice and intend to have satisfaction. He came over land from Brindisi expecting to find the duke in England. He is not here, however, and no news can be got of his whereabouts. My brother has no doubt the duke is keeping out of his way, afraid that my brother will either challenge him or shoot him in a crowd. If found by my friends, he will not be able to escape a duel and if a meeting takes place he will probably be shot."

IN A NEW ROLE.

Detective Daggett Exercises an Unwarranted Authority.

He Pounces Upon an Unoffending Citizen and Maltreats Him—Officers Interfere and Quell the Disturbance.

In the Council saloon on Commercial street yesterday evening Joe Jenkins, city editor, and C. C. Cline, foreman of the Times, had some misunderstanding resulting in an altercation which would have been settled in short order had not Detective Daggett, who happened to be in the Times office, from which he witnessed the little fracas, jumped in and hit a man named Hawley who was wholly disinterested in the affair except in so far as he tried to separate the combatants. Daggett struck the man, he hit him down and then jumped on him.

From parties who witnessed a portion of the difficulty, it seems the wife and Cline were having an altercation, as stated, when the barkeeper and Mr. Hawley undertook to separate them, the former taking Cline and the latter Jenkins. At this juncture Daggett entered the place, and seeing Jenkins struggling with Hawley, promptly struck the latter. A three-cornered struggle followed, when Policemen Jenkins, who had been attracted by the rumble, entered. He rushed in and seized the newspaper man, whose back was towards him. The latter turned and struck the officer in the eye, putting the officer in mourning. Deputy Sheriff Burt and Cline then interfered, and Officer Jenkins left. Feeling a few minutes later that none of the parties had been arrested, he returned, and taking Daggett and Jenkins into custody escorted them to the city hall, but they were afterwards released. Officer Jenkins says that he is satisfied that his namesake did not know that he was striking an officer, and under the circumstances he exonerates the newspaper man for that act. As before stated, the original difficulty was of a trifling nature.

Considering that Daggett is under serious charges as a law-breaker and held for appearance before the grand jury, is it not singular that he should still exercise authority as an officer of the law? In any other town in Christendom he would have been suspended the moment the charges against him were preferred, while here he seems to be licensed to play the general bully as before. Salt Lake suffers as no other city ever suffered from the incompetency of the police; now a new source of danger is added to this in the miscellaneous abuse of citizens by an imported detective who chums with Marshal Young.

The state of Denmark was never so rotten as the state of our police department; Daggett caps the climax. What next?

SMITH'S SOPHISTRY.

His Violent and Absurd Harangues Correctly Reported.

THE HERALD correspondent in Logan reports to President Joseph F. Smith's explanation in yesterday's issue of this paper in the following telegram:

LOGAN, Utah, Nov. 4.

To the Editor of THE HERALD:

Some of President Joseph F. Smith's words at the conference on Monday, in addition to those he admits in his communication to THE HERALD, are: "We see to-day Benjamin Harrison is a Republican as well as his grandfather was a Republican; and the latter-day Saints in the days of Nauvoo, of Joseph, the prophet, and others of the leading authorities of the church, the history informs us, all voted for Mr. Harrison—a Whig in those days. Well now, if we should all combine to vote for a Republican President, we should not be very far wrong, that is, from my standpoint. We have always believed in the principle of protection. The doctrine of Brigham Young was protection, and this very principle of protection is just exactly lying at the very foundation of the growth of this people. If I were to have my way about it I do not know but I would have the latter-day Saints about equally divided."

MORE FROM DIXIE

Encouraging Reports from the St. George Copper Mines.

The Mount Baldy Milling and Mining Company Incorporated a Big Strike in the Godiva at Tintic.

Mr. E. G. Woolley, of Woolley, Lund & Judd, who owns the Dixie group of copper mines near St. George, received the most encouraging news yesterday. The establishment of the smelter was a good deal in the nature of an experiment, as it had not previously been proved whether or not it would pay to reduce the second-class ores produced by the group, and which run from 25 to 30 per cent. copper. To get at the facts, the smelter was built and 30 tons of ore started up for a test run. After a run of several days, the owners now think they have good reason to believe that the venture will prove a most unequalled success. If so, it will mean much for the southern section of our territory. "It now looks, however," said Mr. Woolley yesterday, "as though we would be compelled to close down for a time at the end of the present run, owing to the fact that we cannot get enough teams to keep the smelter supplied with ore, which is to be hauled eighteen miles. The smelter could easily keep fifty teams going on the road all the time, and so far we have not been able to secure this number. Mr. S. S. Adams, once of this city, has had entire charge of the erection of the smelter, and to his excellent judgment is due much of the success which has been attained."
